Reported: 08/02/2011. Officers were dispatched to 910 N First Ave Apt A reference a family dispute. The caller (Offender) stated her mother (IO#1) had a restraining order against her boyfriend (IO#2) who was also on scene. On scene I (Officer E. Rasche) spoke with the offender outside. She told me her mother had got a protective order against her boyfriend, who was in the house, and wanted him to leave. was upset about this and thought her paying rent gave her the right to have the boyfriend (IO#2) come to the house despite there being a valid protective order against him. Officer C. Irvin was inside the house speaking with both of the IOs. followed me into the house and began to yell very loudly just inside the door about the situation not being fair. I told her that we understood her side of the situation, but need to speak with her mother about the protective order. would not stop yelling about how this was not fair and began cursing loud enough to be heard outside the residence. I then told we need to talk with the others involved if we were to find out if the protective order had been violated and her yelling and cursing was not allowing us to do so. then stated " I aint going to be fucking quite because this shit aint right". When asked if she would either step outside or be quite so we could conduct our investigation she again stated " No I aint going to be fucking quite and you all aren't doing anything about this shit." was then warned once by Officer and Irvin and once by myself if she did not stop yelling and cursing she would be arrested for disorderly and interfering with our investigation. She then stated " Fine you can take me to jail because I am not going to be quite becасue this aint right and you don't understand" I then place hands behind her back and placed my hand cuffs on her. I began to walk her outside to remove her from the situation so officer Irvin could complete our investigation. I pulled a chair over for her to sit in and asked if she would sit in the chair. She stated she would not sit in the chair just because I wanted her to. She then physically pulled away from me and fell to the ground when she did. I could still hear yelling coming from inside the house so I called for other cars to assit us. While outside did not stop yelling and swearing, and was loud enough		RASCHE, E. M.
