Reported: 06/02/2011. VIC said her husband, OF came home from work very angry. He kicked her leg while she was lying on the bed. He then took her purse and removed her car key. He left to go back to work. VIC complained that her left arm hurt from when OF pulled the purse from her. She indicated several times she did not want to press charges because she didn't feel she was battered. She expressed dismay that law enforcement could not prevent her husband from coming home later. She simply wanted law enforcement to make OF a nice guy and not angry and aggressive, and appeared upset that law enforcement could not give her an instantaneous protective order. VIC was given instructions for pressing charges and obtaining a protective order. VIC finally ordered the officer to leave if he could be of no help, stating that it must apparently be alright if he comes home in a couple of hours and is agitated at her again. | | WEIGANT, J. A. |
