The 76 yr old had a roommate that was interfering with the medics. When I arrived on scene I was met by EFD personnel who told me that the roommate was calm and not causing a problem. EFD personnel had me enter the residence by the back door. There is an overwhelming stench from spoiled food. The steps from the back entrance to the kitchen area was covered in several items causing a hazard to medics and EFD Personnel. I entered the kitchen area and there were items (mostly junk) about 4 foot high and a small pathway to where the patient was at. There were flies and fleas landing on the emergency personnel. The patient was just released from the hospital. The patient could not move her legs. The patient refused all help from emergency personnel. We convinced the patient to go to the hospital. The patient was taken to St Vincent Hospital for treatment. The patient was dirty and her hair was unkept. When the AMR medics were leaving the residence they noticed that fleas were on their body. The entire residence had junk everywhere. There was a pathway to other areas of the home. The home is a fire hazard. If the home caught fire the residents could not exit nor could the firefighters enter the residence and make a swift rescue. The front entrance has an enclosed front porch. The porch was filled approximately 6 foot tall with junk and there was no way anyone could enter or exit the home. The Adult Protective Services (APS) arrived on scene They talked to the roommate and got more info on the 76 yr old patient. They entered the home and took pictures. APS stated that they were going to get a protective order barring the 76 yr old patient from returning to the home until it is up to code. There are two animals in the home.
