Reported: 03/28/2014.  Victim states that she has been having issues with her neighbor (OF) for quite some time. She stated that it began when she called animal control with a complaint about her neighbor's dogs. After Animal Control came to her neighbor's house, her neighbor began yelling at her and her children whenever they would be outside. Victim states that the OF has never threatened her with physical acts of harm, she feels threatened by the extreme verbal rants that the OF will begin whenever she sees her in the yard.  On today's date, the victim was having a wooden fence professionally installed by "Backyard Fence" company. While the subject who were installing the fence were in her yard working, the OF came outside onto her front porch and began yelling at the workers to stop installing a fence on her yard. The workers explained that they were installing a fence on the victim's yard and the OF was attempting to tell them it was her yard. The victim came outside and attempted to talk with the OF, but the OF continued to yell and would not talk reasonably with the victim. The victim said that the OF stated that she would tear the fence down and have it removed.  I explained that there was not crime that was committed because it is not a crime to threaten harm to property and since she didn't threaten or convey a means of harm to an individual, at this point it wasn't intimidation. The victim stated that because of her rants, and seemingly unreasonable state, she feels as if her safety is in danger whenever the OF comes outside and begins ranting. I informed the victim I would take an incident report about the situation that occurred today.		SCHAFER, W. J.
