Reported: 04/12/2015. On 041215 at approximately 1815 hundred hours, I [ScDoris] and Officer J. Clegg were dispatched to 1324 N Fares in reference to a domestic in progress behind a business. Both officers arrived and were unable to locate either subject. As I was sitting on scene, the original caller approached my patrol car stating he had gotten the information second hand, but it was regarding his neighbors to the north of his residence. He stated that he was told that a male and female were fighting out back and then the male dragged the female inside the residence [1330 N Fares] where he was "holding her hostage". Officer J. Clegg and I attempted to make contact with anyone inside the residence but were unsuccessful. As we were still on scene, dispatch advised that another neighbor called in and stated they could see a male and a female inside and appeared that the male was "holding her hostage". Officer J. Clegg observed what he initially thought was a male in the western most upstairs window. He instructed the subject to come down and open the door. As we requested additional cars and a supervisor, a female came out and identified herself as T. Lockhart. She stated she and the suspect, her ex-boyfriend had gotten into it and she had run into the house and locked him out. She stated that he fled and that no one else should be inside. Officers cleared the residence to assure he was not inside. Officer L. Reed spoke with T. Lockhart and she advised that she had come over to the 1330 address to see a friend but the suspect was on scene. She stated that she knew he lived there but didn't think he was there. T. Lockhart said that she tried to get in her vehicle and leave but the suspect jumped in and begged her to stop and talk to him. She stated she was able to get out and tried to run to the house. She stated that he had pushed her so she pushed him back. She was able to run into the house and lock herself in there. While she was inside, the suspect slashed two of her tires, causing all the air to leak out of an inch slash on both tires. T. Lockhart stated that they are no longer dating and do not live together. She stated that there was a domestic incident last night out in Posey County. She stated that on that occasion, he had hit her, knowing she was pregnant. T. Lockhart was insistent that she did not want to pursue charges for battery or the criminal mischief. She was given information about how to file a protective order and given the case number. T. Lockhart was barred from 1330 N Fares Ave per the residents. Officers were unable to locate the suspect.		SEDORIS, S. N.
