She also told me they had been married for three years. Shortly after I began speaking with all the individuals on scene, AMR arrived. I asked the IO to speak with the medics. The IO did get into the back of the ambulance while I spoke to Persinger and the two other witnesses. The witnesses said the couple get into altercations all the time and he has been arrested for it. Today, the witnesses state they overheard a commotion when both IOs came out of their apartment and the female said "look what he did" and pointed to her face. Persinger said she stepped in front of the male when he shoved her back away from him causing her to fall to the ground. Persinger did not wish to press charges unless the offense would send him to jail at this time. Persinger and the other IOs believe the husband struck his wife; however, the female maintained her story that she wasn't touched. Both Officer N. Sammet and I, in addition to two AMR responders, spoke with the IO. She refused to admit that any physical altercation occurred. The IO kept stating she had been drinking and didn't know what happened. She said she had been through this before and didn't want him going to jail. She said he was getting "help" for previous domestic incidents and that he was "doing well." Persinger attempted to convince the woman to come forward, as well. The IO remained consistent that nothing physical occurred. There was no injury visible on the IO; however, it appeared there was some older bruising about the right side of her neck. Her face was red, though it was difficult to distinguish if this was due to her crying or a physical altercation. The female refused treatment with AMR. All parties were released.	(C)	SAMMET, N.
