|            |   | I, Officer S. Brown, was dispatched to 1320 Lee Court (the Arbors office) in reference to the listed victim (reporter) stating that the offender spit on her child. When I arrived, I met with the victim who said she had been having problems with the offender for at least six months. The reporter said she cannot even walk to the store without the offender mouthing her or wanting to fight. The victim lives in the Arbors, as well as the offender so they see each other frequently. Today, the victim claims she was walking through the grassy area near the office when the offender began shouting threats to spit on her young children. The victim said she said to leave her kids alone, but admitted she shouted back at the offender something about fighting each other. The victim states that the offender then moved in and made a spitting sound as though she was going to spit on her kids. At that time, the offender states she pushed her kids back behind her and shouted at the offender. She states the offender then struck her first, but that the pair fought immediately afterward. After the fight was finished, the victim said she talked to the office manager and advised that she needed to file a report or she could be "put out." I observed a scratch to the left side of the victim`s face and a small contusion under her right eye. The victim kept stating she wasn`t worried about it and that it happens when you get in a fight. The victim wasn`t concerned about pursuing charges. The offender did not speak with police. |                |

Clark stated that the suspect and the witness, identified as M. Brown were outside arguing and they have been having issues with the male suspect for a few days. Officers went to room 306 where the suspect and Brown were staying and made contact with Brown. Brown stated that the male suspect was no longer on scene. She stated that he left when he knew the police were called. I spoke to Brown and she advised me that she and the suspect have been arguing over family issues and he got angry and broke the drawer to the end table in the room. Brown also said that at one point the suspect got mad and ripped the cord out of the phone in the room breaking it as well. Brown said she was trying to call someone and it made him angry and that is why he broke the phone. Brown said that the altercation was verbal only and it never turned physical at any time. Brown did not have any signs of injury. Brown was advised to not let the suspect back into the room if he returns. Clark was going to provide Brown with a new phone for her room and I advised the business to call us back if the suspect returns. A report was completed and a copy of the case number was provided. |   | BETZ, D. J.     |
