

She'll have a beer

After her "Win Column" showed only zeros in the 2020 Democrat primaries thus far, even a third place in her home state of Massachusetts, Senator Elizabeth Warren dropped out of the Democrat 2020 presidential candidate field on March 5, suspending her failed campaign.

Done in by "intersectionalism," she was too "woke" for her own good. Everything she saw that she didn't like was racist. She talked and talked until no one wanted to listen. Her extended self-pity and intersectionality may have even been worse than her pathological lying.

Trump wins again

"The U.S. scored 83.5 and ranked No. 1 in five of six categories: prevention, early detection and reporting, rapid response and mitigation, sufficient and robust health system, and compliance with international norms," reported the Johns Hopkins Center for Health Security in their recently released Global Health Security Index.

This completely debunks claims by the dishonest Propaganda Press that the U.S. is unprepared to handle coronavirus (Covid-19) and President Trump isn't doing enough because he's inept." More rubbish from Democrats' media comrades.

Looks like Trump wins again.

Despising constitutional originalists

Threats and intimidation

"I want to tell you, Gorsuch. I want to tell you, Kavanaugh. You have released the whirlwind, and you will pay the price! You won't know what hit you if you go forward with these awful decisions."

Standing with abortion activists on the steps of the U.S. Supreme Court building March 4, Senate Minority Leader Chuck Schumer (D-NY) delivered that accusatory diatribe against two associate justices of the Supreme Court, Neil Gorsuch and Brett Kavanaugh, threatening them personally and intimidating the entire court, over an undecided case.

Schumer proclaimed, "Women's reproduction rights have been attacked..." Then the blowhard expanded his threats, shouting, "We will tell President Trump and the Republicans, who have stacked the court... You're gone in November!"

Spouting epithets isn't unusual for Schumer and this isn't the first time he has been premature, using the availability of the press cameras to his advantage. He perceives, correctly, that the two constitutional originalists won't decide the case the way he wants them to, so his outrage is unleashed. He didn't bother to attack Justice Thomas or Justice Alito, however, who also won't decide the way he wants, since they weren't appointed by President Trump.

The law stoking Schumer's anger was passed in Louisiana in 2014 and requires that abortion providers must obtain admitting privileges at local hospitals within a 30-mile radius. It was passed to protect patients during abortions and to stop fly-by-night abortion operators. The law applies the same licensing standards to abortion providers as surgical ambulatory centers, using common sense, since abortion is a medical procedure and can be life-threatening if unforeseen circumstances develop.

Immediately, pro-abortion groups sued to protect abortion, not to protect the health or life of the mother, and the suit has been working its way up the court path since. In the case before the Supreme Court, June Medical Services v. Russo, an abortion provider is challenging the Louisiana law.

After Senator Schumer's threatening tirade, Professor Jonathan Turley of Georgetown University Law School tweeted, "Schumer's threat to the court that 'you will pay the price' is a direct attack on the integrity of the courts. I criticized Trump for his reckless comments about the courts. Where is the chorus of condemnation of Schumer? Schumer sounded more like a stalker than a statesman."

Turley's absolutely correct; no public outcry was heard from Republican leadership after Schumer's rant; no "chorus" to dress down Schumer or castigate him for his vicious, outrageous remarks. There was, however, a response. FoxNews.com reported: "Chief Justice Roberts Issues Rare Rebuke to Schumer's Dangerous and Irresponsible Comments: Trump Slams Lawmaker, Says Must Pay a Severe Price."

That price could be a felony crime, punishable by up to ten years in prison. A statute, 18 U.S. Code §115, describes an action that "threatens to assault, kidnap, or murder, a United States official, a United States judge... with intent to impede, intimidate, or interfere with such official... while engaged in the performance of official duties..." It certainly fits Schumer's threats.

Republican Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell spoke to Schumer's public attacks last Friday, using his usual mild manner, giving Schumer a strong scolding from the Senate Floor. But is it even possible Schumer can be punished for violating a federal statute? Not in McConnell's Senate, where the possible isn't probable.

We Be People

Boy Scout bankruptcy

First, you bankrupt your moral standards when you allow progressives inside your organization. Next, political correctness governs the behavior of the organization, displacing faith and the moral virtue it creates.

After years of pressure on the Boy Scouts of America (BSA) by the LGBTQ, etc. lobby and their corporate sponsors, merit badges for accomplishments on the path to maturity guided by faith lost their meaning.

The BSA caved to the onslaught by the Left, surrendering their traditional moral foundations in 2013 by admitting homosexuals. At first, the BSA won court battles to retain their moral standards, including at the Supreme Court. Then, in 2015, the BSA opened their ranks to accommodate homosexual leaders. The hundreds of lawsuits involving homosexual molestation multiplied substantially.

Then transgenders were added to the BSA politically correct salad in 2017, completing their “toleration transformation.” Ten months later they opened their campgrounds to biological girls.

In February, 2019 the name change occurred, leaving out the “boy” in scouting because there weren’t many left. The boys who wanted guidance on the path to becoming respected young men left “scouting” – and so did the parents who supported it.

BSA had 6.5 million members in 1972. Today, they’re down to 2 million. With legal expenses continuing to skyrocket and membership falling like a rock, they’re done... another traditionally American organization killed by progressive diversity run amok.

Girl Scouts of America (GSA) is on a similar path. In the 1990s they welcomed political correctness, dropped God from their oath, denigrated “homemaking,” and hired guest speakers from Planned Parenthood. Recently, they also admitted transgenders.

Forget about the advertised “inclusion” of the new, bankrupt “Scouts of America.” The point all along has been to remove the moral impact that the BSA once had on American society and our young men, incrementally.

Progressivism has succeeded. The Scouts succumbed to all the tolerance they could swallow; in the end, choking to death.

The establishment fights back

Biden or bust

President Trump is running for reelection to finish the job he was elected to do in 2016: saving the country. He never sought the presidency for power or fame; he already had those. He had everything he wanted in life. Trump ran for the presidency to save the nation from those who seek to destroy it and remake it into a non-America. He seeks to “drain the Swamp” by taking power from Washington bureaucrats (the Deep State) and returning it to its rightful owners, the citizens of this nation.

Every candidate in the Democrat 2020 presidential field sought the presidency to achieve power and control over others – to expand central government – the opposite of Trump’s objective. Since November 8, 2016 their sole purpose has been to take out Trump. The Green New Deal, single-payer health care (Medicare for All), climate change... these are all secondary. The only rallying cry is “Get rid of Trump!” Bernie Sanders has been deemed incapable of that.

All members of the Deep State are after the same thing: maintaining their power in a status quo structure, the very edifice that Donald Trump is attempting to demolish. Most progressive Deep State members will vote for Joe Biden, now that he has been chosen to force socialist (communist) Bernie Sanders from the race. In the aftermath of Super Tuesday, only two septuagenarians remain; both older than Trump.

One primary win, an expected win in South Carolina, and Biden became the “front-runner.” Media jumped on the victory, universally proclaiming the sudden formation of a “massive” movement for Biden. In one day, Biden went from a hapless loser, denounced lockstep across media, to an ordained, chosen leader. Some said the single thing that saved the establishment Democrat’s presidential future were black Americans voting for Biden in South Carolina. Democrat strategists used the victory to pressure black voters in other state primaries to back Biden. But many black Americans no longer vote as a block in the Democrat Party’s identity politics agenda, so the DNC doubled down. Most blacks won’t vote for Sanders because he’s a socialist. Now Barack Obama will get involved, making certain they vote for Biden.

When the DNC head honchos and the Obama-guided leaders of the Democrat elite launched their plan to rally around Biden after South Carolina and dispose of Sanders again, the conference calls began. Obama, Biden and others made calls to Pete Buttigieg, delivering promises for a chance in 2024 or 2028. His time was not now; American voters were not ready for a homosexual “couple” in the White House and he couldn’t get any black American support after his actions as mayor of South Bend, Indiana. He was asked to endorse Joe Biden and quit the race, so he did.

We can guess that similar calls went to Amy Klobuchar next, with numerous bribes, to also back out of the race (even before her own primary election in Minnesota) and guide her supporters to Biden. So she did, and helped Biden win Minnesota’s Super Tuesday primary.

After Elizabeth Warren’s miserable zero-for-fourteen-performance Super Tuesday, placing third in her home state of Massachusetts, she got the next phone call from Obama and company. As of this writing, she’s not endorsed either Biden of Sanders, but did suspend her campaign.

Post Super Tuesday, Joe Biden has a broad coalition. He’s got suburban women and black voters (two identity groups), the supporters of Buttigieg and Klobuchar, and even GOP Never-Trumpers. Joe got additional help from Warren, who pulled some leftist voters from Sanders in the election.

In Deep State Washington, DC progressives in both parties run the show. No matter that Trump is president; the machinery is controlled by progressives. The decades-old progressive coalition must survive and maintain power and control. It’s all that matters. So it’s “Biden or bust.”

Enough!
