Reported: 06/14/2022. I was dispatched to 2801 Monroe Ave in reference to domestic violence in progress. A third-party caller stated that her daughter was in an altercation with her boyfriend. I arrived and spoke with the male. The female had already left the scene. The male stated that he and his girlfriend haven't been getting along at all lately and they have each damaged each others' property. The male pointed out a broken coffee pot and a cut up canvas photo of him and his daughter that the female had destroyed. The male said they have been dating for about 2.5 years and they have been living together at this residence for over a year. The male stated that the argument today started with something relating to a loofa in the bathroom. The		HACKWORTH, N.

	male stated that as he was walking out the door to leave at about 0700, he realized he forgot something and turned around to go back in the house to get it. The male said that the female then shoved the door into him, so he pushed it back at her. The male said he left, went to work, and returned this afternoon. The male said he was home when the female got home from work and they started arguing again, but there was no physical altercation this time. This is apparently when the 911 call was made. The female gave a largely similar version of events. The female said they were verbally arguing and the male went to leave at about 0700. The female said as the male was leaving, she shut the door on him "trying to get him out" of the house. The female said the male then shoved the door back in her face, where it hit her in the mouth. She pointed out a red spot on her inside, lower lip. I did not photograph the red spot because I did not think it would turn out well in a photograph. The female also had bandaids on bloody cuts on her hand, which she admitted was from her destroying the coffee pot because the male "pissed [her] off." The female agreed that they started arguing again when she got home. The female repeatedly brought up past events where the male has allegedly battered her, thrown things, and destroyed her property, though the male has never been criminally charged with any of those allegations. The male stated that he was going to pack up his things and get an apartment tomorrow. The female reluctantly agreed to leave for the night and get a protection order tomorrow.
