

20th Annual CCO Community Awards Luncheon Appreciates Record Turnout

NOVEMBER 2022

EVANSVILLE - Roughly 240 people gathered at BALLY'S-Evansville for The City-County Observer's Annual Community Awards Luncheon. It was a record turnout for the paper.

The CEO and publisher of the City-County Observer kicked off the Nov. 3 gathering by expressing his appreciation for attendees' help in honoring the outstanding community members. The luncheon brought students, political candidates, elected officers, elected judges, members of the business community, and people from across the region to support their families and friends receiving awards.

The luncheon is also a tribute to good journalism. Many of those who attended the luncheon said they valued that.

Among them was Ron Geary, owner of Geary Capital, who has done business in Evansville for years. "The CCO finds the truth and reports it," said Geary.

The CCO publisher was not the only journalist in the room at the affair. John Krull, director of the Pulliam School of Journalism at Franklin College, delivered the keynote address.

Krull told the story of his journey in building TheStatehouseFile.com. It was intended to get students off campus during January and work outside of their comfort zone, both physically and mentally. But what started in a small closet with a table—and Wi-Fi, as Krull noted—is now an official news source, with more than 35 paying media partners and a newsroom at the Indiana Statehouse.

Due to the struggles of the news business and increased demand for content, Franklin College students now report from the Statehouse year-round.

"It allows students to cover great intellectual distances in a very short period," said Krull.

Krull was honored after his speech by Vanderburgh County Commissioners Cheryl Musgrave and Ben Shoulders that dedicated Nov. 3 as "John Krull Day" in Vanderburgh County to recognize his dedication to being a journalist and mentor. He also was given five $1,000 scholarships to help fund students working at the Statehouse.

These scholarships were named in honor of the 2022 "CCO Community Service" award recipients: W. Harold Calloway, Joe Kiefer, Superior Court Judge Robert Pigman, and Sue Schriber and John Dunn.

When accepting the award, Dr. Dunn used his time to give a public apology to a fellow community leader, Vanderburgh County Superior Court Chief Judge Les Shively. The two had been on opposite sides of a legal battle years before. Judge Shively approached the stage for a tearful hug. Their reconciliation drew arousing applause and tears and symbolized what the awards are meant to be about.

USI Names Blunt, McCullough To Interim Positions On Campus

NOVEMBER 2022

The University of Southern Indiana has named Dr. Shelly Blunt, Associate Provost for Academic Affairs, as the Interim Dean of the Pott College of Science, Engineering, and Education, effective January 2. She also serves as a Professor of Chemistry. She previously served as the Associate Dean for Pott College. Blunt succeeds Dr. Zane Mitchell, who announced he would be stepping down from the position at the end of the year due to ongoing health reasons. Mitchell will continue to serve the University on special projects for the Provost's Office.

"We are pleased and proud to welcome Dr. Shelly Blunt back to the Pott College to serve as our Interim Dean," said Mitchell. "Shelly had an amazing and positive impact on the College during her time as Associate Dean, and we know the College will be in good hands with her at the helm."

Blunt is actively involved in STEM education and was instrumental in the development of the Southwest Indiana STEM (SWI-STEM) Resource Center at the University. She currently serves on the Science Education Foundation of Indiana (SEFI) Board and numerous state-wide committees of the Indiana Commission for Higher Education.

She earned her undergraduate degree from Truman State University and her doctoral degree in organic chemistry from the University of Iowa. Her research interests revolve around directed metalations in organic synthesis, STEM education, academic advising, and student success and persistence. Blunt has generated over $4.5 million in external funding as principal investigator to support her research interests in STEM education, and student success and persistence. Her efforts in STEM education in southern Indiana earned the Celebration of Leadership Regional Impact award in 2010. She is responsible for securing several grants, including Lilly Endowment Charting the Future for Indiana Colleges and Universities Grant, Co-Principal Investigator, 2020-2023, $2.5 million; National Science Foundation (NSF) Improving Undergraduate STEM Education (IUSE) grant, 2020-2022, Co-Principal Investigator, $149,952; and NSF-Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics Talent Expansion Program (STEP) grant, Co-Principal Investigator, 2008-2013, $1.2 million.

Blunt has been actively involved in undergraduate advising, served as University Advising Fellow for five years, and received the Outstanding Advisor of the Year and the Phenomenal Women of USI

Rokita Alerts Hoosiers To Recalls

NOVEMBER 2022

Attorney General Todd Rokita is alerting Hoosiers of important consumer protection concerns for products recalled in October. Consumers should take full advantage of the solutions available for those who purchased the recalled items.

"Hoosiers need to know if purchased items in their homes are flawed," Attorney General Rokita said. "This month, several recalled products are home related, and it is important you pay close attention in order to keep you and your family safe. Consumer protection is one of my office's top priorities. If you have difficulty finding a solution for your

Neighbor To Neighbor, Human To Human

NOVEMBER 2022

By John Krull

EVANSVILLE—John Dunn stood in front of 240 people and fought back tears.

Dunn, a successful Evansville businessman, just had received the “Person of the Year” Award from The City-County Observer, a feisty and effective local newspaper, at the paper’s annual luncheon.

An honor such as that for many people would prompt a round of thanks. For others, it might have become an exercise in self-congratulations disguised as humility.

Dunn chose another route altogether.

That’s why he was struggling to master his emotions.

As people watched him, they applauded—to encourage him. To let him know it was okay.

When Dunn began to speak, the words came haltingly.

He said he knew it was time for the luncheon to end, but that there was something he had to do. He had done something that he considered out of character for him.

There was someone in the room, Dunn added, about whom he had said harsh things. It had been wrong for him to say such things, even in the heat of conflict, Dunn said. That was not the kind of person he wanted to be.

He wanted to be the sort of person who did the right thing.

Some years ago, Dunn and Shively, then a lawyer and not yet a judge, were on opposite sides of a legal battle. The jousting was intense and hard-fought.

Hard feelings ensued—and lingered for months and then years.

Dunn looked at Shively’s table for a moment, still working to compose himself.

When he spoke again, every word seemed on the verge of breaking.

Dunn said he wanted to publicly apologize to Shively for the things he had said about him. As Dunn said the words, he brushed away tears.

Shively got out of his seat and walked to the stage. He, too, was crying.

The two men, warriors in who knows how many battles, embraced for a long moment, both of them weeping. The people in the crowd clapped. Many of them had tears in their eyes, too.

We live in contentious times. As fellow citizens and neighbors, we disagree about many things. Many of our arguments are bitter ones that leave both sides feeling bruised and wronged.

It becomes easy—too easy—for us to marinate in the stew of our own seething.

It takes a person of courage and character to step away from that anger, to surrender resentment, to acknowledge responsibility for wrongs done.

But it’s the right thing to do.

Because, whatever our differences—however fractious our debates might be—we are still fellow citizens and neighbors. We are fellow human beings.

That should count for something.

That’s what John Dunn understood.

I was seated at the head table when Dunn delivered his apology to Shively. They embraced right behind my chair.

I had delivered the keynote at the luncheon.

I made a decent speech. Maybe it was even a good one.

I told stories about remarkable things my students had done. I told a few jokes. People laughed.

They clapped and said nice thing when I was done.

But—a week, two weeks or a year from now—no one will remember what I said.

They will remember, though, what John Dunn did. They will recall how he battled with his emotions as he willed himself to do something difficult.

The right thing.

And they will remember the two men who once clashed bitterly and ended up reconciling before a room full of people.

This is as it should be.

A speech, after all, is just a speech.

But what John Dunn did?

That’s a path forward for all of us.

Operating Within Our Means A Priority For Indiana

NOVEMBER 2022

By State Senator

Vaneta Becker

Indiana is consistently recognized as one of the most fiscally responsible and business-friendly states in the country, in large part because of our steadfast commitment to operating within our means.

Here in Indiana, we balance budgets and stay committed to our priorities, including investing in important public needs like schools and roads, maintaining a favorable tax climate and paying off debt.

For example, we continue to aggressively pay down our outstanding obligations to the Pre-1996 Teachers' Retirement Fund, so it doesn't remain hanging over the heads of Hoosier taxpayers. We were pleased to have recently paid down an additional $2.5 billion this year. Once this fund is fully financially self-sustaining, Indiana will have $1 billion a year freed up in our state budget.

Because we operate within our means, we were also able to pass House Enrolled Act 1002 to phase down Indiana's income-tax rate to 2.9%, which is tied for the lowest rate in the nation among states with an income tax.

Furthermore, Indiana was recently ranked No.1 for infrastructure by CNBC due to the overall sustainability of our roads, bridges and broadband access - all of which have been made a priority by my colleagues and me.

Lastly, Hoosiers and entrepreneurs from other states see our state as a place to invest in. Last year, Indiana set a record for new small business startups, which is a direct indication of our healthy business climate.

Practicing fiscal responsibility and investing in Hoosiers will remain priorities for me as your state senator, as I believe it will pave the way for tremendous opportunities in the near future.

Feeling Better After Biden’s Recent Press Conference

NOVEMBER 2022

By Dannie McIntire

It’s a crisp morning in southern Indiana as we begin to head deeper into the coming winter weather. Thank goodness I will no longer have to worry as much about the cost of the upcoming winter heating season.

President Biden during an interview on NewsNation was asked the question, “You’ve referred to the midterm election as a choice, rather than a referendum. Given record inflation, why should voters choose Democrats?”

He answered; “Because it’s not recording inflation anymore I’m bringing it down”, which immediately sent me back into the kitchen to fortify my morning cup of coffee with a good splash of Jim Beam.

It doesn’t seem that long ago my wife and I could go out and enjoy a reasonably priced lunch for under $30 dollars, now it’s most often closer to $50 if not more.

Now I might be wrong, but I’m highly doubtful that our president does the weekly White House grocery shopping, gases up the vehicles, or pays the heating and light bills.

Now I know politicians on both sides of the aisle lie, I think it must be a contagious virus that especially circulates in the air around Washington, D.C.; but if you’re going to lie to me at least try to make what you say seem even the slightest bit plausible when our economy has an annualized 8.2% inflation rate.

During a recent speech, President Biden bragged; “The most common price of gas in America is $3.39, down from over five dollars when I took office”; ugh, fact check, the average price when he assumed office was $2.39.

Then our president went on to say; “We need to keep making that progress by having energy companies bring down the cost of a gallon of gas that reflects the cost of paying for a barrel of oil”.

Mr. President, you went to Saudi Arabia and bumped fists with the Saudi ruler Mohammed bin Salman thinking you secured his commitment to increasing their oil production only to later have him join Russia in having OPEC reduce their oil production as a slap in the face to you. How about taking the shackles off the American oil industry here at home and let them pump American oil...oh wait...that makes too much sense!

Take A Break Dannie And Get Another Cup Of Coffee

Well, now the Biden administration is accusing Arizona Governor Doug Ducey of trespassing after he decided to plug unfinished sections of the border wall in his state with stacked shipping containers in an attempt to stanch the flow of illegal immigrants. That folks in a nutshell is the current administration's “looney toons” thinking on illegal immigration. Don’t apprehend and

CenterPoint Energy Issues Winter Heating Tips

NOVEMBER 2022

Evansville, Ind. – As the seasons change and Daylight Saving Time ends on Sunday, Nov. 6, CenterPoint Energy is reminding customers that now is a good time to prepare for the winter heating season with some simple household safety and energy efficiency measures.

When setting your clocks back one hour on Sunday, remember to take care of these tasks around your home:

Replace the batteries in your home's smoke alarms and carbon monoxide detectors.

Check the expiration dates on these devices. Smoke alarms typically have a lifespan of 10 years, while carbon monoxide detectors last five years.

Clean the vent ductwork on your dryer to reduce the potential for a dryer-related fire. It also helps your appliance run more efficiently.

Schedule your annual furnace inspection with a qualified technician to make sure your heating system is running safely and efficiently.

Now is also a good time to take advantage of energy efficiency tips to reduce your energy usage and lower your utility bills:

Replace or clean your furnace filter regularly. Good air flow is essential for maximizing efficiency and the life of your furnace.

Uncover heating vents. Make sure vents are not blocked by furniture or drapes to ensure proper air flow.

Turn down the thermostat. Lower it by 10 degrees at night or when you're away for at least eight hours. You can potentially save 10% on your space heating costs. With a programmable thermostat, it's easy to have your heating system work around your schedule.

Seal air leaks with caulking and weather stripping around windows and doors. By keeping warm air in and cold air out, you can reduce your energy usage and costs.

Turn ceiling fans to rotate clockwise. It produces an updraft and moves warm air away from the ceiling into the rest of the room.

Close the fireplace damper when not in use. An open damper allows warm air to escape your home.

Get Ahead Of Winter And Avoid Frozen Outdoor Pipes

NOVEMBER 2022

EVANSVILLE – If you have a lawn irrigation system on your property, now is the time to prepare for winter and avoid frozen water pipes. Lawn irrigation systems should be equipped with a backflow assembly that stops water from flowing backward in your pipes to prevent potential contamination of the public drinking water supply. Water not adequately drained from the backflow assembly can freeze and damage sensitive components inside the device.

Evansville Water and Sewer Utility (EWSU) strongly urges customers with lawn irrigation systems to winterize the backflow assembly before temperatures dip below 32 degrees again this fall. Burst water pipes can be costly to repair or replace, and the expense is the sole responsibility of the property owner.

EWSU recommends hiring an irrigation expert to check the backflow assembly and prepare it for a hard freeze. The best way to winterize the device is to drain all water from the backflow assembly, disconnect it and store it in a warm place. If that is not feasible, you can do it in a few easy steps with a flathead screw-

How To Winterize Backflow Assembly

Slowly shut off the water coming from the meter to the backflow assembly. Use a flathead screwdriver to open the test cocks to release water from the assembly. After the water has drained from the assembly, use the screwdriver to close the test cocks. Close the water shutoff valve to ensure no air gets into the system.

ONEP Contract Unanimously Renewed By County

NOVEMBER 2022

Evansville – At the regularly scheduled Vanderburgh County Board of Commissioners Meeting on October 11, 2022, the Board unanimously voted to renew their contract with ASM Global, the company that currently manages the Old National Events Plaza.

ASM Global has operated the convention center and 2,500-seat Aiken Theatre since its opening in 2000. Board President Jeff Hatfield stated, “ASM Global has been a valuable partner in ensuring the continued success of the Plaza!” The venue hosts over 300 event days and more than 170,000 guests annually, acting as the primary location for conventions in the destination. Commissioner Ben Shoulders, the Vice-President, said, “ASM Global continues to provide top-notch service while serving as a key partner to our county. I’m excited to work with them at the Plaza.”

The Aiken Theatre at The Plaza is Evansville’s Broadway house and offers an average of 35 shows to the community each year. Commissioner Cheryl Musgrave stated, “ASM Global is a great partner who brings world-class entertainment to Evansville.”

with the facility to leverage our expertise and partnerships across the industry to bring even more exciting concerts and events while maintaining the values of a community venue,” said Doug Thornton, EVP Stadiums Arenas, and Theaters for ASM Global.

Nick Wallace, General Manager of Old National Events Plaza, stated, “We are honored to lead the local events industry and manage this beautiful venue. This agreement signifies the trust our organizations have cultivated throughout the last 22 years. Both Vanderburgh County and the live events industry have evolved significantly over the last 5 years, and we look forward to providing new opportunities and amazing experiences for this community in the coming years.”

Wallace accepted the General Manager position at the Plaza earlier this year after previously holding the Assistant General Manager and Director of Finance roles. He noted, “The venue’s initiatives for advancement include increasing customer engagement services, launching new products and technologies that will enhance our customer experience, and meeting the post-pandemic needs of an increasingly diverse population of event planners and promoters.”

charge those coming into this country illegally, instead charge those who are trying to stop them.

Apparently, all is not doom and gloom in the state of Illinois, the “Fairness and Equity Today (SAFE-T) Act, signed by Illinois Gov. J.B. Pritzker, is going to make life easier for the criminals of the state. Commit a crime, why it’s simply unfair to require a cash bond to be released from jail, it’s not your fault, so cash bonds are being eliminated. Judges will be prohibited from considering a criminal’s past behavior in determining if they are a flight risk.

Certainly being required to wear ankle monitoring is highly unfair so a defendant wearing one who leaves home without court permission will be allowed a 10-hour window before authorities can charge that person with escape. That again folks is liberal democratic thinking, it’s only fair to give someone is facing a criminal charge a 10-hour head start in escaping.

Goodness, I hope I have enough Jim Beam left for one more cup of morning coffee.

I may be a republican conservative, but I don’t want to give the impression that I have a total lack of faith in the current administration’s ability to address all of the serious problems facing our nation.

President Biden did squeeze into his schedule sitting down with a transgender activist who wants to normalize transgender males displaying a bulge when wearing tight clothing. Well, that certainly makes me feel better that our President is aware of the most serious issues facing the average American like me.

If you are as concerned about the direction of our country as I remember you have a chance to correct the present course by VOTING this November 8th. Remember, not voting is a vote for the other team.

Ivy Tech Begins Partnership With JR's Expedited Freight

NOVEMBER 2022

EVANSVILLE – JR's Expedited Freight (JR's), a Rexing Company, is proud to announce its partnership with Ivy Tech and their CDL training program partner DriveCo, in advancing the CDL training program to help build and grow the regional truck driving industry, which is critical to the economy.

"We are excited to commemorate the start of this partnership by investing in and sponsoring the drivers' shelter at Ivy Tech's CDL training program site," said Dylan Rexing, CEO of Rexing Companies.

"Ivy Tech and DriveCo's continued commitment to this program represents an advancement towards offering more opportunities in the future in the trucking industry and more options for local individuals in obtaining a financially rewarding career.

"Through this partnership, we are committed to help increase the labor pool of skilled drivers which has been steadily declining over the past several years. Once an individual completes the CDL training program, they have career opportunities with a local premier company that will continue to support them," Rexing added.

"First, we are grateful for the shelter for our students, so that we can comfortably continue classes year-round with protection from the sun, wind, and rain," said Ivy Tech Chancellor for the Evansville Campus Daniela Vidal. "But more importantly, it is great to have a company who is dedicated to hiring Ivy Tech-trained and skilled graduates. The need is great, not only in our 10-county region, but across the nation."

UE Hosts Michael Warrick Exhibit 'Reflections'

NOVEMBER 2022

EVANSVILLE – "Reflections," an exhibit by Michael Warrick, is currently on display at the University of Evansville's Melvin Peterson Gallery. The public can stop by during gallery hours now through December 10 and view Warrick's sculptures.

The Melvin Peterson Gallery, located on the corner of Lincoln and South Weinbach Avenues, is open from noon until 3:00 p.m. on Monday, Tuesday, Friday, and Saturday; and from noon until 6:00 p.m. on Wednesday and Thursday.

A public reception for Michael Warrick will be held on Thursday, November 17, at 6:30 p.m. The reception will be held in the Melvin Peterson Gallery, and the public is invited to attend. The exhibit and reception are part of the Emerging Contemporary Artist Lecture Series, sponsored by the Efroymsen Family Fund and the UE Department of Art.

At the age of 16, Warrick made his first sculpture at a two-week art camp. From there, he studied ceramics at Illinois State University and began building kilns and furnaces for firing clay and bronze work. Warrick then continued his studies at Southern Illinois University-Carbondale, where he received a Master of Fine Arts in sculpture and ceramics. His career has spanned more than three decades in higher education as a professor of sculpture and ceramics. His exhibition record includes more than 40 solo exhibits and over 170 competitive and invitational exhibits.

Warrick considers his artwork both "spiritual and dark in nature." They are expressive in the way they explore themes of transformation, identity, death, and memory. He uses a variety of materials (e.g. wood, gold leaf, cor-ten steel) and techniques (e.g. wood-fired kiln, clay, bronze casting, welded fabrication) to express turning points in life.

VU Reveals 3 New State-Of-The-Art Labs

NOVEMBER 2022

VINCENNES – A new Center for Applied Robotics and Automation, Additive Manufacturing and Reverse Engineering Center, and HURCO Advanced CNC Machining Technology Center embody Vincennes University's commitment to innovation, state-of-the-art technologies, extraordinary educational experiences, and powerful industry partnerships.

The first-class centers were unveiled during an open house in the College of Technology Center on the Vincennes Campus earlier this month.

VU is a leader in providing Indiana and the nation's workforce with the skills needed in today's technology-driven advanced manufacturing industries.

VU is preparing students for the jobs of today and tomorrow. The three centers represent a $4.8 million investment that ensures VU is producing career-ready graduates.

According to VU President Dr. Chuck Johnson, "Vincennes University is delighted to have three new centers that will create more opportunities for students and will help support the needs Hoosier employers have for skilled talent. Vincennes University has a deep commitment to student achievement, and these three centers will enhance the educational experiences of many students that will have a significant positive impact on VU, the State of Indiana, and across the nation for decades to come."

U.S. Congressman Larry Bucshon described the new spaces as outstanding. While touring the centers, he pointed out that VU is always ahead of curve.

"The equipment is the most up-to-date technology," Bucshon said. "This is the type of training that we need for the workforce of today. We need high-tech workers who have skills, and this is an outstanding university for that."

The centers are yet another example of how VU is moving the State of Indiana forward in a bold way, thereby positively impacting the economy and communities.

"We have a lot of job openings out there," Bucshon said. "We have companies that are literally begging to find qualified employees, so the more of those people who we can get trained and into the workforce, it benefits everybody."

The cutting-edge laboratories guarantee students access to the latest technology and facilities which are relevant to industry needs, foster new skills, and ready the future workforce.

"Hands-on learning is really important in developing the skills and knowledge needed to keep up in industry today and in the future," VU Provost Dr. Laura Treanor said. "The facilities and equipment in the new centers represent a very nice new space that provides a great learning environment for our students, but it is VU's high-quality faculty and staff, who are dedicated to student learning that make the biggest impact on our students' success. They are the ones who make the programs so highly successful and so highly valued by our employers."

UE Launching Construction Management Program

NOVEMBER 2022

EVANSVILLE – In 2023, the University of Evansville (UE) will launch a four-year Bachelor of Science in construction management degree. The program will be housed in UE's School of Engineering and Computer Science, and applications are now open for Fall 2023 entry.

A construction manager is responsible for the planning, coordination, budgeting, and supervision of an array of construction projects. The job not only includes in-office administrative duties but also onsite work, monitoring projects and making crucial decisions for both the team and the project.

This field continues to grow within the tri-state and throughout the nation. According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, construction management jobs are projected to grow by 11 percent between 2020-2030, faster than the average for other jobs. In 2021, the median salary was nearly $99,000.

Over the course of four years, the construction management program at UE will place heavy emphasis on technical and managerial skills. Students will learn design and planning concepts as well as construction methods, equipment, and codes. As safety is a major factor in construction, an upper-level course will focus on safety management methodology and OSHA compliance.

"The construction management program was created to meet the industry demands for construction managers at the local and national levels," said Suresh Immanuel, Ph.D., PE, associate dean in the School of Engineering and Computer Science. Immanuel also serves as a professor of civil engineering and will teach courses for the construction management program. "Due to technological advancements in construction processes and buildings, project management has become more complex which demands specialized personnel for successful completion. The curriculum designed for this program will touch each point of the process, from project planning to full completion."

Students will participate in hands-on learning in several classes, but internships with local businesses will provide real-world, immersive experiences. In their final year, students will also complete a yearlong capstone project under the supervision of a faculty member or industry partner. Through these opportunities, students will develop a strong foundation in planning, field operations, project scheduling and management, and working in teams.

The program will be led by Hyun-soung Park, Ph.D., assistant professor of civil engineering. Park earned a bachelor's degree in architectural engineering from Hongik University in South Korea, a master's degree in construction management from Texas A&M, and a Ph.D. in construction management from the University of Florida. In the construction industry, he worked as a project manager for Hyundai. He also served as an Air Force Sergeant in the civil engineering squadron for the Republic of Korea Air Force.

"Construction is an applied discipline, so practical experience is very important," said Park. "Our students will learn about every step of construction so they are equipped to handle real projects immediately following graduation. We are ready to fill the demand of this growing market, and this is going to be a great field for anyone interested in construction and engineering."

Beautiful production numbers invite audiences into the world of Beauty and the Beast, as Belle shows what it means to be fearless. Along with her new friends in the enchanted castle, Belle is encouraged to step outside the ordinary and find joy in the bleakest situation. As she looks beyond the harsh exterior of the Beast to reach his gentle heart, fans learn there are teachable moments in everyday life.

Showgoers will witness each character’s unique qualities and talents inspiring children around the world to discover their inner hero.

Enhance your Disney On Ice show ticket with a preshow Character Experience, “Storytime with Belle”, that includes a dance party, crafting, and interactive time with Belle. Bring your personal device for photo opportunities with Belle and her special guest, Mickey Mouse.
