I observed officers dealing with a female outside the entrance who was in handcuffs. I approached to assist Officer M. Tevault, when I observed the female, later identified as the offender, stand up and start yelling. Officer Tevault warned the offender that she needed to be quiet or she would be charged with disorderly conduct. When the offender was yelling, I could smell the strong odor of an alcoholic beverage coming from the offender`s breath. I observed her eyes were blood shot and glassy. The offender`s speech was slurred. The offender failed to be quiet and continued to yell so much that several patrons kept walking up and asking if they could help. Even patrons that knew the offender were telling her to be quiet and not to fight with officers. Officer Tevault went to my patrol car in order to write a citation for the offender`s actions. I stood by with the offender and advised her to remain seated and she would be released shortly. The offender ignored the request and stood up. I asked the offender to sit down, but she refused. I advised the offender we wanted her to remain seated while she was handcuffed so she wouldn`t fall. Still the offender refused and Officer Andrews and I assisted her in sitting back down. Moments after doing so, the offender again stood back up. At that moment, I escorted the offender to my patrol car and was going to secure her in the rear seat until Officer Tevault was done with the citation. Once in my patrol car, I was beginning to buckle her in when the offender spit saliva onto my face. I redirected the offender`s face so that she wouldn`t spit on me again while I was securing the seat belt. Once secured, I was backing out of the vehicle and the offender spit on me again. While waiting for Officer Jeff Taylor to retrieve a spit mask, I observed the offender took off the seat belt. I removed the offender from my patrol car, placed the spit mask on her and kept her on the ground. I was waiting for the transport	HASTINGS, M. J.
