Grau stated the vehicle had sped off and then said, "she had to have come back after that because that's why I have all of this, all of the keys on my car." Grau stated as she was walking into the store she noticed the vehicle made a loop around Home Depot. Grau stated she couldn't remember what the vehicle was, she thinks it was white but thinks she could be wrong about it being white. Grau kept referring to the other driver as a "she". Grau was given this case number. I then went inside Wal-Mart and spoke to an employee about watching the cameras due to the claim above. Wal-Mart AP employee allowed me to watch the security video from the time frame I gave them. Security video shows Grau pulling into the second parking spot, in the first row against the sidewalk, facing east. There were no other vehicles driving near Grau. Grau was in the parking spot around 1020 hours. Grau exits her vehicle and goes into the store. Grau gets back to her vehicle around 1037 hours, and it appears as though she is walking the driver's side of her vehicle. As Grau is approaching the driver's side she suddenly changes directions and goes to the passenger side. Grau immediately looks down at the side of her car and I assume she is looking at the scratch. From the time Grau parked her vehicle until the time she got back to her vehicle, no one walked directly by her vehicle. I called Grau back after watching the video and explained to her that the video showed that no one was driving by her vehicle when she pulled into the parking spot. I also explained to Grau that no one walked directly by her vehicle while she was inside the store. I told Grau that there would not be a criminal mischief report done under the case number that was given to her. Grau stated "ok", "that's fine, thank you", and the call was ended.

The victim stated she had been in the room for 2 days. When officers asked the victim if she was forced to stay in there, she stated no. The victim stated the offender was trying to get her to leave the house.
