She proceeded into the intersection at Washington Avenue and Kentucky Avenue, where another vehicle struck her vehicle going north on Kentucky. She advised that she did not contact the police at the time of the incident because she was shaken. She stated it was a gray passenger car and did not have a description of the driver. I observed damage to the passenger side door of her vehicle, which I documented with my body-worn camera. Further investigation revealed that the driver of the other involved vehicle had already reported the incident on November 7, 2025, stating he might have hit another car but a report was never taken. The other vehicle was a black Toyota Camry. A report was taken, and the reporter was provided with the case number. |                                                   |                  |
